

An Introduction

Anne Carlsen Center is dedicated to helping individuals lead a life that is built on dignity and filled with as much independence as possible. For many individuals, this means connecting with their community as a college student, a volunteer or an employee.

The foundation of this program is one that our namesake, Dr. Anne Carlsen, based much of her life on. She believed that each person, regardless of ability, had worth and could learn to perform tasks and achieve goals.

Dr. Anne, born without lower legs or forearms, wouldn't allow disabilities to define her life. She earned her bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees, and as an adult, enjoyed driving a car. She was and is an inspiration in the lives of countless people connected to the Center and our mission of hope.

Comments about GRASP from former clients

"This was one of the most professional and valuable assessments ever done on my son."

"The information will be very helpful to my student in making career choices."

"The process was thorough, but not intrusive."

Grass Roots Assessment Services Project (GRASP)

Assessment has the potential to be a powerful force. Not only can it motivate individuals, boost self-esteem, and increase self-confidence, but conclusions drawn from assessments can be used to persuade employers and colleges that an individual has the potential to undertake a particular job or complete a training program.

GRASP Objectives

 Conduct community-based vocational assessments for individuals with disabilities in North Dakota. Assessments can be performed in the individual's home community as well as at the Anne Carlsen Center.*

 Assist school personnel to implement and utilize functional curricula for individuals with disabilities.*

 Assist school instructors to meet transition requirements as outlined in IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act).*

 Evaluate the effectiveness of the assessment with the providers of vocational services and review the appropriateness of the suggested recommendations and vocational goals.*

GRASP Components

Young adults receiving GRASP assessments are observed and evaluated in a number of different areas. These areas can include, but are not limited to:

- * Dependability
- * Job Attitude
- * Personal Traits
- * Job Effort
- * Social Skills

From the assessment results, vocational strengths and needs are determined and a list of suggested activities is recommended for use by educational teams and adult providers. These suggestions can then assist in planning appropriate educational goals, employment experiences, and living opportunities for the individual.

GRASP Funding

There are various funding methods that can help pay for an assessment. Upon approval, Vocational Rehabilitation may fund this assessment, provided the individual has an open case. GRASP can also be funded by other sources such as the school district, other agencies and/or an individual's family.
